Marrel obtains ISO 14001 certification

AN IMPORTANT MILESTONE HAS JUST BEEN TAKEN FOR MARREL THANKS TO THE OBTAINING OF THE INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL CERTIFICATION STANDARD ISO 14001, IN ADDITION TO THE ISO 9001 CERTIFICATION IT HAS HELD FOR 20 YEARS.

The 4 production units (mechanics, boiler workshop, assembly and bodybuilding center on chassis) as well as the various departments involved were audited in order to assess the integration of ISO 14001 standards into the various business processes.

For Jérôme Semay, CEO of Marrel, "obtaining this certification is for Marrel the formalization of procedures that we have been keen to comply with for a long time. This certification makes it possible to formalize our level of requirement and to set ourselves new objectives while respecting the environment; and there will always be work to do."

Samuel Chazot, QSE and Methods Manager

"For many years, Marrel has made respect for the environment one of its priorities.

ISO 14001 environmental certification was a real challenge that was met thanks, among other things, to the work of our QSE teams and our maintenance department, who worked to implement and comply with the criteria specific to this standard"

Marrel has been sorting and recovering its production waste for many years

"THIS CERTIFICATION ALLOWS US TO FORMALIZE OUR LEVEL OF REQUIREMENT AND TO SET OURSELVES NEW OBJECTIVES WHILE RESPECTING THE ENVIRONMENT; AND THERE WILL ALWAYS BE SOMETHING TO DO"

AIO CERTIFICATION

A certified organization demonstrates that it takes into account the impacts and risk factors inherent in its operation and undertakes improvement actions throughout its operation.

Today, Marrel Ampliroll® hooklifts and Skiploaders are widely used in the waste collection and recycling sector; as such, they are a link in the circular economy chain. It seemed natural then to formalize the commitments and improvement objectives in terms of sustainable development.
